Best time to visit Vietnam

Northern of Vietnam

>>Hanoi, Halong Bay, Sapa, Hoa Binh, Mai Chau, Son La, Dien Bien, Ha Giang, Ninh Binh, Thanh Hoa>>

Northern of Vietnam is generally warm and sunny from September to December. January to March is cold winter weather sets in, accompanied by fine persistent mists which can last for several days. Summer is from May to September and it also the rainy season, when heavy downpours render the low-lying delta area almost unbearably hot and sticky and flooding is regular hazard.

Central of Vietnam

>>Nghe An, Ha Tinh, Quang Binh, Hue, Da Nang, Hoi An, Quy Nhon, Nha Trang, Da Lat & Central Highland>>

Along the central coast, the rainfall pattern resersers under the influence of the Northeast monsoon. Around Nha Trang, the wet season starts with a flourish in November and continues through December. Further North, around Hue and Da Nang, the rain last a bit longer, from September to February, so it pays to visit these two cities in the spring (Feb - May). The coast of central Vietnam is the zone most likely to be hit by typhoons. In general, the typhoon season lasts from August to November.

Southern of Vietnam

>> Ho Chi Minh City, Phan Thiet & Nui ne, Mekong Delta, Vung Tau, Long Hai, Con Dao & Phu Quoc Island >>

The dry season last from December to late April or May, and the rain from May through to November. Since most rainfalls in brief afternoon downpours, this need not to be off-putting. Despite the odd downpour, favorable diving conditions continue around the island of Con Dao in May.

Best time to visit Laos

The small, landlocked country of Laos is best visited between October and April, when the weather's warm and dry throughout. River travel is best between November and January, when high water levels make passage easy along Laos' main waterway, the Mekong River.

The small, landlocked country of Laos is best visited between October and April, when the weather's warm and dry throughout. River travel is best between November and January, when high water levels make passage easy along Laos' main waterway, the Mekong River.

Visiting the Bolaven Plateau is also pleasant at this time of year. Laos' geography plays a major part in shaping its climate, and cool temperatures can still be found in the highlands, which lie mainly in northern, eastern and central regions.

The 'green season' falls between late May and October, when the rains return to the country. However, showers are usually short and sharp, having little impact on your exploration. At this time of year the country comes to life, with waterfalls beginning to flow once more and the lush scenery attracting a variety of wildlife.

Best time to visit Cambodia

The dry season in Cambodia runs from October to April, and the wet season from May until September, with the heaviest rainfall generally in August & September. Average temperatures range from 24°C in the cooler months of October, November & December to 35°C at the hottest time of the year from March until June.

Low Season (May – Sep)

The rainy season means emerald-green landscape and awesome cloud formations. Big accommodation discounts and protective could cover make this a great time to visit temples. From May to September is the wet season or 'off-peak season', less hot and the less expensive one – also means fewer tourists. Most travelers visit Cambodia from November to March. If you prefer to dodge the crowds and go when prices are lower, the best time to visit Cambodia is from May to early October.

Shoulder Season (Apr – Oct)

The best time to visit Cambodia is between the months of December to March, when the weather is cool and windy- almost Mediterranean. This is the peak tourist season as well. You can also visit Cambodia between October and November, when the monsoon season has ended, and the weather is rather pleasant and dry.

High Season (Nov – Feb)

The cool season (Nov–Feb) is the peak time for tourism – mild enough to explore the temples in comfort but warm enough to sunbathe by the coast.

VN Holidays >> Myanmar (Burma)

Best time to visit Myanmar

Similar to most places in Southeast Asia, due to the monsoon season, timing your trip to Myanmar is essential unless you want to spend most of your time battling against torrential rains and flooding or intense heat. Myanmar is one of our favorite places Asia given the fact that it still isn't as touristy in contrast to its neighboring countries. To help you make the most out of your time in Myanmar, here's some information on the best time to visit as well as the top things to see and do in each place.

In fact, you can visit Myanmar all year round, due to its tropical climate. However, as a general rule, try to avoid visiting lower part (Yangon, Bago, Kyaithiyo, Ngapali, Ngwe Saung) from June to September. During this time (especially from July to September), the wet season is in full swing. Places like Ngapali Beach during this time even closes due to inaccessible roads.

The best time to visit most of Myanmar is from November to February as it is neither too hot to walk around due to the cool breeze that blows in. March to May, on the other hand, are boiling hot, especially in the plains near Bagan and Mandalay. If you want a more specific guide, here's some information on specific regions in Myanmar and when to best visit them.
